Expert: Iran Continuing to Push the Boundaries of the Nuclear Deal

by TheTower.org Staff | 09.07.16 12:06 pm

Iran is systematically pushing the limits of the nuclear deal it reached with world powers last year without facing significant resistance, a leading non-proliferation told The Jerusalem Post on Monday.

Emily Landau, head of the Arms Control Program at the Tel Aviv-based Institute for National Security Studies, offered her assessment in light of revelations last week that Iran's negotiating partners secretly granted it exemptions from some of the obligations it assumed under the nuclear accord, which Tehran would have otherwise failed to fulfill in time to receive sanctions relief.
