

Rising Temperatures, Rising Tensions: Climate Change and the Future of the Middle East

The Institute for National Security Studies (INSS) in Tel Aviv and Konrad Adenauer Stiftung Israel (KAS Israel) are pleased to invite you to an online conference. Experts from Israel and countries in the region such as Qatar and Jordan will discuss the opportunities and challenges of climate change for security and stability in the Middle East.

TYB (CC BY 2.0)

Thursday
3 December 2020

16:00 - 17:30 IL time

15:00 - 16:30 CEST

09:00 - 10:30 EDT

Livestream |
on INSS website and social media
The conference will be held in English

Opening Remarks

Dr. Alexander Brakel, Head of the Foreign Office of Konrad
Adenauer Stiftung
(KAS) in Israel

Panel Discussion

Dr. Deborah Sandler,
Oxford Martin School
Fellow; Chair, Track II
Environmental Forum
at the Arava Institute for Environmental Studies

Brig. Gen. (res.)
Michael Herzog,
International Fellow,
Washington Institute
for Near East Policy;
former Chief of Staff, Israel's Minister of Defense

Ghaith al-Omari,
Senior Fellow,
Washington Institute
for Near East Policy;
former Palestinian Authority official and advisor to Palestinian negotiation team on
final status issues

Neeshad Shafi, Executive Director of Arab Youth Climate
Movement Qatar; MIT
Climate Co-Lab Fellow

Tessa Terpstra,
Counsellor, MENA Regional Envoy for Water and Energy Security, Embassy of the Netherlands based
in Amman, Jordan

Dr. Shira Efron,
Senior Researcher, INSS; Special Advisor on Israel with the RAND Corporation; Adjunct Scholar at the Modern War
Institute, West Point