

The Reform is wholly a National Security Threat

Mohammed Wattad / Mar 25, 2023

The “legal reform” is an unsuccessful and dangerous disguise for a parliamentary coup. Its purpose is to concentrate all the governing power in the hands of the government. It limits the judiciary’s powers and the gatekeepers monitoring the government. This legal Reform is a threat to the national security of the State of Israel. The constitutional right to protest against the coup is becoming mandatory these days. In particular, the right to protest is a duty among the Arab minority in Israel.

The concentration of large-scale and unrestricted governmental power in the hands of a single central governmental authority is nothing more than a regime coup, earning the right to be part of a democratic regime.

In a parliamentary democracy, the executive branch is meant to have the most significant power of wide-ranging and extensive regimes. In the parliamentary democracy of Israel, the legislative branch, as an authority supervising the government, is entirely controlled by the executive branch. The coalition consists of Knesset members; The Knesset committees are controlled by chairmen belonging to the coalition; And the enactment of laws, the lifeblood of parliamentary activity, is controlled by the mandate of the coalition discipline by the ministerial committee for legislative matters.

...

About the Author:

Professor and Dean of the Law School, Academic College; Senior Researcher, Institute for National Security Studies, Tel-Aviv University; Research Fellow, International Institute for Counter-Terrorism, Reichman University; Research Fellow, Minerva Center for the Rule of Law under Extreme Conditions, Haifa University; and a Visiting Professor, University of California at Irvine (2014-2016). Graduate of leading law schools, i.e., Columbia University in the USA, Toronto University in Canada, and the Max Planck Institute in Germany. A former legal clerk at the Supreme Court of Israel (2003-2004).

For full article:

<https://blogs.timesofisrael.com/the-reform-is-wholly-a-national-security-threat/>