U.S. Ambassador to Israel Tom Nides responded on Tuesday to remarks made by Israel's far-right Diaspora Minister to refrain from meddling in Israel's internal affairs by saying, "I really think that most Israelis do not want America to stay out of their business."

"Some Israeli official – I don't know who he is, I don't think I've met him – suggested that I should stay out of Israel's business," Nides said during a live interview at the Institute for National Security Studies (INSS) in Tel Aviv.
