The Kremlin comes calling

Viewpoints, November 2016

By Ambassador Zvi Magen

The yearlong Russian involvement in Syria has intensified the tension between the Kremlin and Washington. The strain between the two powers has escalated into an international crisis and has assumed the mantle of a renewed cold war.

Since September the crisis has been deepening and has brought in its wake a slew of reciprocal accusations and denunciations. Russia has advanced provocative demands; such as a halt to Nato's expansion into Russian areas of interest and the cessation of sanctions and subversive actions against it and recognition of its status as a major power.

…

Zvi Magen is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute for National Security Studies affiliated to Tel Aviv University and a former Israeli ambassador to Russia.

For full article, see:

http://ipdforum.org/kremlin-comes-calling/